

GOOD SCHOOLS

Prof. E. D. Burton, Principal of Jeffersontown Public School Makes a Plea For Educational Advantages in Kentucky.

SPEND MONEY AT HOME.

Jeffersontown, Dec. 24, 1907.—After four months of unceasing toil we have, at last, arrived at that holiday, which alone of all, can bring joy and cheer unto every home in this School District.

After a few more days of anxiety and longing, we can be at home and visit our friends until Monday, January 6, 1908.

Boys and girls, how many of you have fulfilled the promises you have made your parents, how many of you have realized the hopes you indulged on your entrance to school last September?

If you have not been dutiful and have deceived your parents who have made sacrifices in your behalf, the uneasy conscience resulting therefrom will mar, to a great extent, your happiness throughout the entire intermission. If there is any manliness in a boy it will certainly display itself in school.

After the holidays is another time of good resolves. If you have wasted the past, do not waste the present in considering "what might have been," but forget what is behind you and make a good resolution for the future; and when another holiday comes you can enjoy that contentment and satisfaction which the consciousness of having well performed your duty alone can bring.

Many years ago education was a luxury, and only those who were blessed with riches could afford a "good education." Colleges were private enterprises operated by private individuals, and more often by the churches. This system has long since fallen through by reason of the unsatisfactory results which followed, and has been supplanted by the modern system of public education. Education has come to be considered a necessity, and it is no longer mooted question whether instructions of learning should be maintained at the public expense. We have learned by the experience of less enlightened ages to no longer intrust our institution of learning to the church.

England supports her institutions and her public schools from her treasury. German universities, and likewise the most noted ones in Europe, are supported in the same way. In our own country, with but few exceptions, the great institutions of learning are not denominational, and mostly maintained by the states in which they are situated.

In this age of economy it is strange that we have never considered that we are annually paying thousands of dollars to other states for the education of our sons and daughters. Why is this? Not because there are not schools in our own state. Kentucky has at least a dozen dignified with the name of college or even university. Not many years ago Kentucky was second to but few of her sister states in educational facilities. But she has declined until now she ranks among the last.

If we were as wise as some of the other states, we would devote this money that we are spending annually to these other states for better schools in Kentucky, we would give it to teachers who would spend it and invest it in our midst, and we would build up the common school system, which would be our pride, which would attract attention of our sister states which are younger and less wise than we.

It is earnestly hoped that Senator J. Wheeler Campbell, of McCracken county, at the next meeting of the General Assembly will be able to do our state school system good, and put our schools on par with other states. Respectfully,

MEETS DEATH

On First Hunting Trip—Linton Stout Killed By Accidental Discharge of Shotgun.

Fairmount, Ky., Dec. 28.—Linton Stout, the twelve-year-old son of Robert Stout, of the Seatonsville road, accidentally shot himself on Christmas morning. With a little friend, Robert Stivers, he was hunting on the hillside just back of Cedar Springs church. While walking on a very steep incline the youth slipped several feet and his gun was discharged in the fall, the entire contents lodging in his right side. His companion, who was some distance away, ran to him, then called Joseph Funk and Charles Martin, who carried him to Mr. Martin's house, where he died two hours later. This was the first time the boy had been entrusted with a gun.

An examination of the wound showed that the right lung and intestines had been laid bare by the load of the twelve-gauge gun, and five ribs of the back were torn loose. That the boy remained conscious for two hours following the accident is considered remarkable.

The boy's relatives arrived at his bedside before his death. Following an investigation of the case Coroner Groves pronounced death as an accidental shooting. Besides his parents, the lad is survived by three brothers and a sister.

After funeral services conducted by Rev. H. N. Reubelt, the remains have been interred in Jeffersontown cemetery.

C. C. FEGENBUSH

Passes Away at His Home Near Fairmount December 18, After Lingering Illness.

Fairmount, Ky., Dec. 28, 1907.—Columbus Fegenbush died at his home, Maplewood, at 730 a. m., December 18, 1907. He was born near his present home October 12, 1847. His funeral was held at the English Presbyterian church at 10 a. m., Dec. 20, 1907, and the services were conducted in a very solemn and impressive manner by the Rev. H. N. Reubelt, after which the remains were interred in the Jeffersontown cemetery.

He leaves a wife, who was before her marriage, Miss Louisa Wooley, to whom he was married thirty-five years ago; and two daughters, Miss Georgia Bush and Mrs. Frank Ross, besides one brother, James Fegenbush, and three sisters, Mrs. Rebecca Vaughn, Mrs. Dudley Vaughn and Mrs. Jefferson Wooley.

In the death of Mr. Fegenbush the community has lost a good and useful citizen and the family a kind and devoted husband, father and brother. He was a quiet man, but one who ever stood firm for the right and the good of his neighborhood and his country.

Mr. Fegenbush was a prosperous business man, and had built for himself one of the most beautiful homes in this community. He was an example to the young man in thrift and enterprise, and the manner in which he kept the trust given to him by the ties of nature.

ACCIDENTAL

Discharge of Gun Results in The Death of Ernest Evans, of Fisherville, On Christmas Day.

Fisherville, Dec. 30.—Ernest Evans, while out hunting Christmas day, was accidentally shot by the gun being knocked from a stump where young Evans had stopped to rest. Death resulted a few hours later.

Ernest was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Evans, and was one of the most promising young men of the community. He was eighteen years of age and was a favorite with both old and young. He leaves many friends to mourn his loss. He is survived by his parents, two sisters and three brothers.

APROPOS

Of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt's Voting For Her Father, William Jennings Bryan, For President.

WRITTEN BY A "OLD TIMER."

"Johnnie! All off the shed, Broke!" leg and cut his head. Sister S. R. Don't bother me, I'm going to a social tea."

In the grand old days of bygone years the most prized privileges, and duties of women were marriage, maternity and care of children and duties of home. To what extent we hear a great deal about the new woman with her many ambitions and freakish fads, who seems to think that woman's sphere lies as far as possible away from children and the duties of home. To what extent this movement may go is unknown, however the present generation is not to blame for the sad state of affairs. Had our female ancestors remained in their homes, the place God intended for them, of we today would not see the thousands going to their daily tasks, which ought to be performed by men. Women have clamored for their rights, and aped after the men in war, in politics, in smoking, until in many instances she is treated like a man; but to real men these things are not only revolting, but pitiful, for most men believe that woman's influence in her home is the best demonstrated in her home, where so many opportunities are afforded for wielding that power.

What an influence the mother has! The teaching, moulding, and guiding of the children who become the men and women of the world. Combine with this her influence over husband, brother and male friends, and her power will permeate to the very ends of the earth.

If necessity compels, there can be no objection to women entering the field of labor formerly supposed to belong solely to men, but she can reserve her womanliness. That many women are brainy enough, and able enough to compete with men in many professions or trades, is not a matter of doubt, but is an acknowledged fact by the best men, and the best men honor the women who are compelled to work, and still preserve their womanly attributes.

On the other hand women should not make the mistake of believing their powers show best when compared with man's effort in the workshop or in the professional life, nor should she let her abilities run riot and take the form of freakish stunts of foolhardy daring.

Everybody admires the many women social reformers, foremost among them Frances Willard, the great temperance woman, and Susan B. Anthony, an agitator of woman's rights, but let us imagine for a moment that women are privileged to vote, and hold offices hitherto held by men, the all important question of dress would occupy a prominent place that I fear the duties imposed on her by said offices would suffer very materially.

There would be campaign jackets committee room waists, voting skirts, hats and shoes for stump speaking, and what not? Then imagine a pretty young thing, coming up to the polls to cast her first vote; dressed in a particularly fetching costume, something entirely new, and watch the sidelong glances of envy and jealousy from her fellow voters. They are so intent on the particular style of skirt that they almost forget to vote.

Then again imagine a woman planning, and advising with, and being advised, by her worst enemy simply because party success was at stake, and just think of a woman after being defeated in the primary, by the most barefaced fraud, turning around and supporting her opponent at the regular election—why it's impossible for women are not built that way. Now if women will vote, let them conduct themselves on a higher standard of action, and until they do, let us hope the NEW WOMAN idea will fade away.

FOR SALE

The Jeffersonian has done a great work for me in the past six days in regard to selling my herd of Berkshire shire hogs and gilts. I had sold 41 and have left still on hand 9 shoats and 2 gilts, mixed breed, that I will sell cheap in order to make room for several sows that will farrow in a short time. Look up my ad in The Jeffersonian of the 27th inst. H. A. HUMMEL.

and that the strong noble type of WOMAN and MOTHER be considered the ideal.

No reflections however, on Mrs. Leavitt and the ladies of Colorado, for they may possibly be made of different stamina, from that of the Kentucky women, and if they are convinced that their voting will assist materially in their state's government, let them vote by all means. OLD TIMER.

W. P. BRUMLEY

Passes Away at His Home Near Jeffersontown After a Brief Illness of Pneumonia.

As the result of an attack of pneumonia, superinduced by weakness following an operation after being gored by a bull, William Preston Brumley, one of the best known residents of Jefferson county, died at his home near Jeffersontown last Thursday night. Mr. Brumley was sixty years of age, and is survived by his wife, Mary, three daughters and a son.

About two months ago Mr. Brumley was gored by a bull and sustained internal injuries. Dr. S. A. Blankenbaker, who attended him, had him removed to St. Anthony's Hospital, where an operation was performed by Dr. Hendon. The patient recovered partially, but was still in an enfeebled condition when taken to his home, several weeks ago.

On Sunday of last week Mr. Brumley contracted a severe cold, which soon developed into pneumonia, and lacking his usual vitality, he fell a victim to the disease.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and the burial was in the Jeffersontown cemetery. A son, Clarence Brumley, of Jeffersontown, and two daughters, Mrs. Jeff Harris, of Louisville, and Mrs. Ben Kennedy, of this county, are among the children who survive their parents. About twenty years Mr. Brumley had conducted one of the largest dairies in Jefferson county.

A Family Reunion.

Christmas, with all its pleasures, and its many phases has passed, and none passed more pleasantly than the one which was celebrated at the home of Mr. Robert A. Foster, who lives on the Shibley place on the Seatonsville pike. The occasion was one long to be remembered, as the children and grandchildren with a few friends were invited to gather once more to pay their respects and show their love for a father who has always been an honorable and industrious citizen and who notwithstanding the many long years of hard work is still hale and hearty and possesses yet the strength and energy of a young man, despite the fact that seventy-five winters have passed since he first saw the light of this cold world. It is all the more enjoyable from the fact that the old gentleman enjoys or gives a joke with a vim and earnestness of many younger men.

To say that the parting at the close of the day came too soon would be putting it mildly, for amongst the whole number there were once but regretted the closing of such festivities, and the wishes of each one was that there might be a continuance of such gatherings for many years yet to come; and the echo of that feeling is in the heart of the writer. With the hope that there were none of the people of this grand old Commonwealth who failed in the full enjoyment of such a glorious day and hoping that all may enjoy a happy New Year, I am

REVOLUTION

Says J. W. Sawyer, of Colorado, who Writes Interesting Letter To The Jeffersonian.

Trusts Monopolizing Country.

HEADS I WIN; TAILS YOU LOSE.

Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 22, 1907.

EDITOR THE JEFFERSONIAN:
Dear Sir: Someone sent me a copy of your paper of Sept. 5. I clipped the following editorial:

"An increase of $1,000,000,000 over last year's returns for farm products is indicated by the crop reports. This is good news for the trusts, which have already planned how to take it away from the tillers of the soil."

Our way at the present time the sugar trust is paying the beet growers in scrip for the labor. The greatest of the trusts, the bankers' scrip, is also paying depositors in scrip. The whole push, the corporations, are not only getting what the tillers of the soil produce, but everything else but a bare living for the working class. The seven wise men who decided Gilead was wrong were about as wise as our plutocratic rulers of the present time. A few multi-millionaires, like Rockefeller, decide what the masses must pay for all they use. They toss the penny and its heads they win and tails we lose every time. But what are we doing about it or going to do about it?

You are having a tobacco war in Kentucky; we are having a mining war here in Colorado, and in fact all over the Rocky mountains. Out here the governors of states conspire together at the behest of the mine owners and kidnap the voters of one state and take them to another state for trial, and the Supreme Court of the United States construes the law so that it sustains the acts of the worst gang of profit mongers that ever existed.

We have a sugar factory here, but have to pay $1 for 14 pounds; sometimes we get 16 pounds for a dollar. The trust ships the same grade of sugar to Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa and other states where it is retailed at 20 pounds for a dollar.

We have to pay the freight on sugar as though it came from the Hawaiian Islands, notwithstanding it is made right here and carries the trusts about 10 cents per pound. The trust pays the farmer 85 cents per ton for beets and it costs about 50 cents per ton to convert them into sugar. The beet yield is about 16 per cent sugar. The people seem to like it and vote for it, so what are you going to do about it?

For my part I would change the whole system; make it impossible for the predatory rick to exploit the producers. We have patched up the old system until the original governments of state are covered with so many patches that the color and fabric of same cannot be seen or told.

I am ripe for revolution against the existing order, for I see no way out but by revolution. The few owners nearly all of the means of production and make the prices at which we have to buy and sell. It is safe to say that 10 per cent of the people own 90 per cent of the wealth of our country and the poor man, who long before one per cent will own 99 per cent at the present rate of accumulation?

The President and the United States Senate make the Supreme Court (by MAKING MONEY.

There are two very satisfactory ways of making money and adding to one's prosperity. One is to keep a bank account with a good reliable up-to-date bank and the other is to place the surplus on time deposit and get interest for the cash that can be spared in this manner. The Jefferson County Bank, Jefferson town, Ky., employs all the methods of modern banking and pays four per cent on time deposits and solicits your business by mail or in person, assuring you prompt attention and most satisfactory results. In keeping a bank account and paying all of your bills by check the banker becomes your bookkeeper without any cost, and you being a depositor gives you a "bank check" which can be cashed at any time and is as good as cash. This channel can be referred to by a positive record. We want your business and we will be promptly acknowledged with gratitude. Cumberland telephone connections.

The Old Cemetery.

At a meeting of the Jeffersontown Cemetery Association last Saturday afternoon the treasurer reported $5.50 received since the last meeting. Edward Hoke and David McKinley were appointed a committee to investigate as to the title to the ground and as to the means to be taken to obtain full control of it. During the past week several interested citizens have grubbed up nearly all of the bushes and the work of cleaning and beautifying the old cemetery is progressing nicely. Claims amounting to $1.30 for labor were presented to the committee and paid by the treasurer. Thirty or forty dollars more will have to be collected to finish the work and it is hoped that those interested will send in their contributions at once. There will be another meeting next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the office of The Jeffersonian.

The undersigned has purchased the entire interests of W. C. Our policies will remain the same and our especial attention will be given to furnishing all the news of interest each week. The Jeffersonian has prospered from the start and has received much praise from all parts of the county. The merchants have recognized it as an excellent advertising medium, our job printing trade is growing fast, and subscriptions are coming in daily. This is the best evidence of our future success, and we feel very grateful to our many friends who have stood by us so faithfully.

Wishing all of The Jeffersonian's many friends a prosperous New Year and promising them one of the best county papers in Kentucky, I am
Yours very truly,
J. C. ALCOCK.

The Jeffersonian publishes a letter from J. W. Sawyer, of Colorado, this week which is very interesting and should be read by all of our subscribers. He takes rather a pessimistic view of the way our government is conducted, but gives a great many plain facts. He preaches revolution. President Roosevelt has shown a disposition to revolutionize things in the way of "igniting after" the train, and if he would consent to make another race for the presidency the country would see some wonderful changes in our national government. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Roosevelt stand on about the same principles and if the former is elected perhaps he will take up the good work the latter has started.

"Since Mark Twain has realized that he is out about $2,000 on his milk factory, he has discarded his white flannel suit, and is now wearing a sack suit of solid black. Mr. Clemens, however, is not broke, and he still holds stock in a hair-pin factory."—Louisville Herald.

Everybody is familiar with the old saying, "what a woman can't do with a hair-pin isn't worth doing," but who would have believed that hair-pins, or the making of them, would ever save a man like Mark Twain from bankruptcy?

The Louisville Times is offering five dollars for the best toast to Kentucky. One of those fellows, who signs his name "a subscriber," writes the following:

There's no Kentucky,
The home I love so well;
If they take away her liquor
The state will go to hell.

There would have been more truth in it if he had written it this way:

Here's no old Kentucky,
The home I love so well;
If they do not take away her liquor,
Her people will go to hell.

PROP. E. D. BURTON writes an interesting letter on the public school system which appears on the first page of this issue. Read it.

WOULD you let a dollar stand between you and your county paper, or would you borrow it?

TEACHER OF

VIOLIN

Notice-Read Carefully:

Simplicity is the principal feature. By the method which I teach you can accompany or play any song or piece of music; also can learn the art of composition, so that at any time you can hum or whistle, you can play or compose the music on the violin as easily as you can hum or whistle it.

By teaching the first sample lesson all my claims will be readily verified. Taking into consideration, also, that this first lesson is really the most difficult—and when you can understand and play this lesson the balance of the lessons are very easy to learn, and which by practice will make brilliant and artistic performers on the violin.

HIGH JUMPING SHARKS.

Doubts of Sailor Who Says He Knows Something About the Big Fish.

You published in your paper on Saturday a very curious story about a shark jumping 50 feet high in the air, writes a correspondent of the South China Post.

The writer or author of this story, a captain of a British vessel, bound for London, says that he fired a rifle shot at a shark and badly wounded it. The shark in question jumped so high out of the water that he cleared the mainsail with the ease of a seagull.

Now, dear sir, this is rather a trifle strong. The captain states that they threw some meat overboard to get the sharks closer to the ship. At the moment that the shark made a grab for the meat the captain fired his shot, which shot made the shark jump 50 feet out of the water.

We that have been at sea all know that there is one kind of shark which has to lay on its side before it can grab anything between its jaws, and another kind which has to lay on its back to do so. The construction of their mouths compels them to take these attitudes. As a consequence the shark in question was either lying on his back or on his side.

A fish jumping out of the water makes the following movement: The fish stretches his back and bends himself in the form of a crescent by bringing his head and tail closer together. At the moment he wants to jump he straightens his back again and hits the water with the tail end of his body. This movement produces the power which enables him to jump a certain height.

As above stated, the shark, when fired at, was grabbing for the meat, and lying either on his side or back. In this position he was not able to jump out of the sea. His movements in this position were limited to three; he could either move ahead, sideways or downward.

I will not deny that a shark is able to jump. I have seen sharks jump five feet and six feet high, but that only when they were hunting some victim. The first movement of a shark when wounded is to dive downward into the elements which is his natural abode, and not to go and make a shipwreck performance around the mast of a sailing vessel.

I know a little about sharks myself, but little as this it qualifies me to write. I know what they can do, and I know also how sharks "taste," having eaten them, for want of something better.

I heard once of an old sailor telling an acquaintance of a shark, which when caught and cut open, had another shark inside; this shark cut out produced another shark, and the last shark had in his stomach a canvas bag with 25 sovereigns.

I think that both stories are about the same value concerning truthfulness.

NEW SIDE OF LINCOLN.

His Constant Interest in the Military Telegraph System.

Abraham Lincoln has been studied from almost every point of view, but it is a notable fact that none of his biographers has ever seriously considered that branch of the service with which Lincoln was in daily personal touch for four years—the military telegraph, for, during the civil war, the president spent more of his waking hours in the war department telegraph office than in any other place except the White House, says the Century. While in the telegraph office he was comparatively free from official cares and therefore more inclined to disclose his natural traits and disposition.

During the last four years of Lincoln's all too brief public career, even until the day before his tragic ending, the writer was most fortunate in being able to see him and talk with him daily, and usually several times a day; for he visited the war department telegraph office regularly, morning, afternoon and evening, to receive the latest news from the front. His tall, homely form could be seen crossing the well-shaded lawn between the White House and the war department with unvaried regularity.

In cool weather he invariably wore a gray plaid shawl thrown over his shoulders in careless fashion, and, upon entering the telegraph office, he would always hang this shawl over the top of the high screen door opening into Secretary Stanton's room, adjoining. This door was nearly always open. He seldom failed to come over late in the evening before retiring, when returning to the White House after dark he was frequently accompanied by Maj. Eckert, our chief, and nearly always by a small guard of soldiers. He sometimes protested against this latter precaution as unnecessary, but Secretary Stanton's orders to the guard were imperative.

Now it's the Orange Cure. Young women are this spring devoting themselves to the orange cure. It consists in taking the juice of two oranges three times a day before meals, or after, if it is preferred. Oranges are said to be particularly healthful in the spring and to be the person who adheres to the regimen a beautiful complexion, better even than that which is supposed to be obtained by eating one raw carrot daily. It surely is a much more desirable remedy.

After the Collision. He—I beg your pardon. Did I hurt your head? She (arranging her hair)—No, only my tail.
